BESPOKE BOOTMAKERS

AMONG shoes as among paintings there are some that one is content to look at, and others so appealingly vivid that one wants to touch them. As for ShoeCraft Shoes, they demand to be slipped on and tripped away in! There are styles enough to suit as various range of needs as only ShoeCraft imagination could have foreseen, and there is always the original ShoeCraft feature of "fitting the narrow heel."

"Butterfly" and "Aida" Earn $6,000 for Masonic Fund

Mme. Easton as 'Cio-Cio-San' in Last Night's Performance at Metropolitan.

The second of two performances under the auspices of the Masonic Club in aid of its charity fund and also the fund for the Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hospital at Utica was given at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening. The opera was Puccini's "Madama Butterfly." The ill fortune which beset the previous evening's representation of "Aida" had been banished and everything went as promised.

The principals were Mme. Easton as the Japanese bride, Orville Harold as Lieutenant Pinkerton, Miss Leveroni as Suzuki and Thomas Chalmers as Sharpless. Despite the fact that artists working in the sacred cause of charity are not subjects of criticism, it may properly be said that Mme. Easton's impersonation of Cio-Cio-San was thoroughly sympathetic and that she sang the music very beautifully. The achievements of the other singers were such as they have made known before. Mr. Papi conducted.

It was estimated that the two performances earned about $6,000 for the charity fund.

'Otello' at the Manhattan.

Verdi's Opera Closes the Favorite Company's Season.

The Favorite Opera Company completed its season of two weeks at the Manhattan Opera House last evening. The opera was Verdi's "Otello," in which Miss L. Darve was the Desdemona, Nicola Zorola the Otello, and the tempo. The performance, like its predecessors, was not one of distinction. The various elements cooperated but roughly, and there was much uncertainty as to style and interpretation.

The season was carried through according to the promises of the managers, and the audiences seemed to increase in size. Operatic representations such as those given by the Favorite company are becoming more numerous in New York. Doubtless some will discern in this fact evidence of a spread of musical taste.

1000 in University Pageant

"The Shadow of the Builder" to Mark Virginia's Centennial.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., May 7.—More than 1,000 characters will appear in "The Shadow of the Builder," the University of Virginia's centennial pageant to be presented in the new McIntire Greek amphitheatre here the evening of June 1 in connection with the university's centennial celebration.

The pageant has been written by Mrs. Frances G. J. Gaffney of Fairhope, Ala. The overture and interludes are by John Powell, American pianist, and the choral music was composed by George Harris, Jr., of New York. It will be presented under the management of Miss Emma Ody Pohl of the Mississippi State College for Women. William Harrison Faulkner, dramatic director, and Arthur Fickenscher, musical director of the University of Virginia, faculty.

"The Shadow of the Builder" tells of the difficulties under which Thomas Jefferson labored in founding the university in 1819. The interludes set forth his classic ideals, which are delivered by Greek characters and accompanied by music and dancing.

Work for Holyoke Fund.

Women in Nearly 100 Cities Aiding in $3,000,000 Drive.

In New York as well as in nearly 100 other American cities thousands of women who have an affectionate interest in Mount Holyoke College are keeping the machinery of a national drive for the Mount Holyoke $3,000,000 Endowment Fund working at high speed. With the formal opening of the drive in this city last Tuesday night, the Mount Holyoke College women of the Metropolitan district, with their husbands, fathers and brothers, filled the ballroom of the Hotel Astor to overflowing. Elsewhere in ninety-nine cities and towns from Maine to California, 4,000 of their sisters assembled at the same hour, all imbued with the same purpose and headed toward the same objective, getting or giving their "50¢."

To Miss Lillian Glah, a guest of the evening, fell the duty of opening the campaign by the release of a large balloon bearing the "50¢" campaign symbol. The balloon was unladen only after the film star had told some of her stage and screen experiences.

Win Dancing Contest Prize

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond P. O'Brien, at a supper and dance in the Plaza in the early hours of yesterday for the American Students Reconstruction Association, of which Mr. Donn Barber is president, won the dancing contest prize, which is a box for "Sally," at the New Amsterdam Theatre, donated by Mr. Griswold A. Thompson. Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien danced successfully through several eliminations and in the final dance against Mrs. Gustave Schirmer and Mr. Carl Springer.

The income from the benefit, which was considerable, is to help defray the expenses of fifty students of architecture and engineering in representative American universities, who, at the request of the French Government, will go over in June to supervise technical details in reconstruction work in the devastated areas.

Sale of Weapons and Curios.

The final session yesterday afternoon at the art collection of Louis V. Bell of New York, consisting for the most part of curios and weapons from Asia, Oceania, Europe and America and of silver and plate, reached a total of $2,107. The entire sale totalled $9,975. At yesterday's session a pair of silver vegetable dishes valued at $1,000, a silver for $110, the highest price of the day. A gold plated silver coffee pot was purchased by E. B. Lester for $105 and a large silver plated candelabrum with mirror stand Renaissance style, went to P. Baumister for $102.

"Follies" Ball To-Night.

The Annual Follies Ball in aid of ill and unfortunate chorus members of the Ziegfeld companies will be held on the New Amsterdam Theatre Roof to-night. The combined casts of the "Ziegfeld Follies" and "Midnight Frolic," as well as Max Fisher's orchestra, will participate.

Surprise Party for Miss Moss.

Miss Beatrice Moss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Moss of 955 Park avenue, was 14 years old yesterday and her parents arranged a surprise party for her. The living rooms were decorated with spring flowers and at supper a big frosted cake suddenly popped open, revealing a pretty girl in a dancing frock. There were attractive favors for each of the guests. Mr. Moss is head of the Moss Theatre.

CLUBWOMEN WRANGLE IN FIERCE ELECTION BATTLE

Magistrate Jean Norris Finally Re-elected President of City Federation.

Indignation, vexation, sarcasm and rage and the sound of voices almost choked with tears yesterday marked one of the bitterest and hardest fought election battles that a woman's organization ever waged. Almost no human emotion that a clubwoman can feel on such an occasion failed to find expression.

The scene of the row was the Pennsylvania Hotel, where delegates to the New York State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs were holding their second annual convention. The conflict centered around Magistrate Jean Norris, who was a candidate for reelection as president, and who won after the heated battle, thereby defeating Mrs. Elizabeth Sears. The ballot casting and counting took the greater part of the day, and during the official counting and reading of the reports groups of women came out into the corridor to give vent to their pent up feelings.

Reporters Excluded From Meeting.

Here were gathered the reporters, who were excluded from the meeting with the statement that all news would be handled to them by the press chairman, Mrs. Grace C. Oakley, who also is press representative of the hotel.

Along about 4 o'clock when the convention had finished with the row and had reached a discussion of the constitution, the reporters were notified that they might enter the convention room. One reason why they stayed where they were was because of an interesting argument just started between Mrs. Sears, the defeated candidate, and a young woman in a black dress, big black and white hat, huge jet earrings and apparently a lot of indignation she wanted to ease her mind of.

She began the attack by upbraiding Mrs. Sears for talking to newspaper representatives. Then Mrs. Sears, who said she had not had the pleasure of meeting her club associate, wanted to know her name. Finally the black garbed one broke out with, "I'm a member of every woman's club and organization that's worth anything in the city. My name is Frances M. Brandow, and I have a reputation for being the most amiable person in the world," she added, with flushed cheeks and eyes that snapped.

"And I don't know who you are, Mrs. Sears, except that you are a very charming and attractive woman, but you are not known, and therefore why should you try to run against Magistrate Norris?" she demanded.

The name of Frances M. Brandow is the last on the committee list, which recently sent out a resolution for the purpose of refuting statements attributed to the supporters of the Sears faction.

At that moment along came a young woman in a cerise hat, who broke out with, "Why, Lenine and Trotsky are mild to what's going on in this," cutting the convention room. "I'd willingly pay $2.50 any time to see as good a show as this."

Gavel Pounded Frequently.

Whenever the doors swung open the reporters caught the sound of raised voices and frequent poundings of the gavel. There were not more than fifty women in the room, but at times it sounded like three times that number.

Lady Anne Azgapanian, a Russian Red Cross nurse, was seated outside near the row of reporters when the Brandow-Sears bout took place. Lady Anne was waiting to go inside and speak. The jet earring delegate may have frightened her, for she hastily crossed over to the other side of the corridor and slipped out of sight in a high backed chair.

Of course, the amenities were restored when the election results were announced, and Mrs. Sears went inside and shook hands with Norris. Norris, after that it was like any other woman's convention. They discussed how they might interest clubs and State federations in politics and went at unfinished business.

The complete ticket elected, which is the one put out by the Norris faction, is: President, Jean H. Norris; first vice-president, Minna Bruen; second vice-president, Helen Waldo; treasurer, Charlotte S. Edgley; recording secretary, Martha Westfall; corresponding secretary, Elizabeth McShane; director, to serve until 1922, Beatrice Henry and Ida E. Mason; to serve until 1924, Helen Louise Johnson and L. Gertrude Irwin. The officers represent various professions and types of business, such as magazine editors, chief of an economic bureau, assistant advertising manager, head of women's department of a trust company and personal director of a department store.

Mrs. Harriett Emmons, leader of the revolt against Magistrate Norris, said when it was all over that they would all stand back of their president. Mrs. Emmons is president of the New York City League of Business and Professional Women, which based its opposition to Magistrate Norris's candidacy on her having been a leader of the Tenth Assembly district organization of the Democratic party, which they considered evidence of party affiliation, and the federation was organized as a non-partisan and non-political body.

The convention ended last night with a dinner at the hotel, to which men were invited.

Club Opens "Festive Week."

The Carroll Club of 129 Madison avenue, with its 6,000 girl members, is having a "festive week." It was opened last night with a dance in the ball room of the club house, which was once the original Colony Club. The proceeds from varied entertainments will be devoted to the improvement of the club's summer camp.

The various departments have arranged millinery, candy and novelty booths, a country store, a children's circus, Southern tea room and other equally attractive features. Each night one department will give an entertainment. There is to be a glee club concert, amateur dramatics, a minstrel show and, finally, "The Triangle Review." Frank Bacon of "Lightnin'" fame will step into the festival at its close next Sunday night.

E. H. Gary Joins Golfers on Links at White Sulphur

He and Mrs. Gary to Pass Month at the Resort—Other Arrivals.

SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE NEW YORK HERALD. WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 7.—Among the late arrivals of the week are Mr. Elbert H. Gary, who has arrived with Mrs. Gary for a month of golfing and the baths. He plays daily on the links.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Billings, Miss Madalyn Evans, Mrs. Holden A. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bray and Mrs. Lewis M. Williams were in a riding party which went out the Allegheny road to Wishbone Farm, a new and picturesque little resort, for dinner and an impromptu dance afterward.

United States Senator David I. Walsh, formerly Governor of Massachusetts, came from Washington to spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. George C. Dempsey of Boston. Senator Walsh was accompanied by Mr. William L. Murray, who was captain of the Harvard eleven two years ago, and the two were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey at a Virginia luncheon at Elmhurst Farm.

Several of the farewell festivities attendant on the departure of Gen. John J. Pershing took place in this informal way: Mr. Albert Morris Bagby entertained Gen. Pershing at luncheon at Elmhurst Farm. Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Stettinius and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Watson, Jr., also were in the party. Mr. and Mrs. Watson entertained the same group at dinner. Another event was a luncheon for Gen. Pershing at Kate's Mountain Club, which was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Stettinius and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt and Miss Cornelia Vanderbilt, just before they started for Biltmore, N. C.

Mr. Leonard C. Hanna of Cleveland gave a dinner party at the Log Cabin. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Williams and Mr. Harvey H. Brown of Cleveland and Miss Olive Kahlo.

Miss Natalie Y. Smith, Mrs. Holden A. Evans of Baltimore and her sister, Mrs. Thomas Maxwell of Lynn, Mass., rode to Wishbone Farm for a breakfast.

Mrs. Francis S. Eaton and her daughter, Miss Olive T. Foster, of Boston are spending several days in Charleston and Washington before returning home.

Mr. John R. Mitchell of St. Paul, who was a visitor here with Mrs. Mitchell until recently, has been nominated by President Harding as a member of the Federal Reserve Board.

Mrs. Dudley Oloott is here with her daughter, Miss Gladys Oloott. Another sojourner is Mrs. McLane Van Ingen, who came with Mr. H. Terrell Van Ingen and Miss Virginia Van Ingen. Other arrivals include Mr. and Mrs. Francis Henry Appleton, Jr., of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Giraud Foster of New York and Aiken, Mr. Edward H. Jewett of Detroit, Mrs. Ransom R. Cable of Chicago, Mrs. Horace S. Hawes of Richmond, Va., who has joined her sister, Mrs. Tazewell Taylor of Norfolk.
